We take part in the energy debate

We represent the nuclear industry’s interests where the energy debate is taking place and deliver targeted information to key influencers.

- Decision-makers
- Nuclear industry
- International media
- Nuclear organisations
We drive global action towards the Harmony goal

25%

To meet the growing demand for sustainable energy, we will need nuclear to provide at least 25% of electricity by 2050 as part of a clean and reliable low-carbon mix.
We coordinate industry expertise

We develop industry positions on the issues that matter through our Members Groups

Working Groups

- Fuel Cycle Working Groups
  - Fuel Report
  - Sustainable Used Fuel Management
  - Transport
  - International Network for Safety Assurance of Fuel Cycle Industries

We represent the global nuclear industry in key international forums
The World Nuclear Association is the only industry body with a global mandate to communicate about nuclear energy.
Our role in EP&R

In the event of a nuclear emergency, we provide high-level information and informed commentary on the event, its implications for public safety, and broader implications on the industry.

We also support the global nuclear industry by:

• Providing wide-ranging expert positions – from radiation protection and engineering to communication and law - through our working groups;
• Strategic communication with global stakeholders, acting as a central point of contact;
• Facilitation of global contact- and expert networks, “lessons learnt”, and sharing of best practices
